As of 2025, NCC Bank has demonstrated mixed financial performance amid a challenging banking environment. The deposit base expanded by 8% to BDT 27,747 crore, reflecting solid depositor confidence. The bank also increased its investment in government securities by 20% to BDT 9,218 crore, prioritizing low-risk assets over aggressive lending. The lending portfolio grew only marginally, indicating a cautious stance in credit disbursement.
Despite a stable balance sheet, profit declined by around 20% due to a sharp 77% rise in provisioning expenses, as loans previously classified as "standard" turned non-performing following the government change in August 2024. Consequently, annualized ROE dropped below 10%, reflecting weak profitability. The NPL ratio rose to 6.4%, still within a manageable range compared to sector peers.55

The spike in provisioning reflects a sector-wide cleanup as banks recognize long-hidden loan issues. For NCC, NPLs surged 47% post-government change, representing a major one-off adjustment. If this phase marks the end of the NPL recognition cycle, earnings could rebound from 2026 onward. While some residual deterioration may occur, the majority of bad assets appear to have been accounted for.
Looking ahead, declining interest rates could allow NCC to realize capital gains from its government bond portfolio, supporting profitability recovery. Combined with its strong deposit base and prudent balance sheet management, the bank is positioned for gradual improvement once credit quality stabilizes.
